

Resignation deadlocks BAC board, 3-3

By Bill Milligan
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — The resignation of Patricia Barsokas from the Belleville Area College District 522 Board of Trustees has tipped the balance of power on that board.

In a letter postmarked May 23, Barsokas announced her resignation from the board, citing personal reasons.

Her resignation leaves the board in a 3-to-3 tie, separated over whether or not to continue college operations under the present administration of Chancellor Bruce Wissore.

A May 29 meeting called by BAC Board Chairman Wayne Reynolds was intended to set up ground rules for selecting a replacement for Barsokas. That meeting had to be canceled for lack of a quorum.

Trustees have until 30 days after the resignation to pick a replacement for Barsokas. If they cannot, the task will be handed over to St. Clair County Regional School Superintendent Martha O'Malley.

Reineck, of Freeburg, and Frances Braswell, of Belleville, were unable to attend the meeting. Elizabeth Jenner was away on a European vacation.

Because 25 percent of the college's student population is in Madison County, and because all of the district's trustees are from the Belleville area, St. Clair County Board Chairman Jerry Costello has recommended finding a replacement from Madison County.

"We distribute service on a regional basis," said Wissore. "It is important that our trustees look at the college in a regional sense. Regional representation is important."

A similar vacancy occurred in late 1979 when Robert Harris, of Granite City, resigned his seat on the board.

Avery Schermer, former college board chairman, was first named to the board to replace Harris. Schermer was defeated last November in an at-large election, but gained more votes than any other candidate who lost the election.

"Someone from here needs to be there to represent our taxpayers," said Schermer. "If selected, I'll serve. I may not be selected because I'm a known supporter of Dr. Wissore."

Also defeated in November was incumbent Dr. James Vest.

"I don't have any great feeling about where a replacement comes from," said Reineck. "I assure you Madison County will be looked at. We need to be sensitive to the needs of Madison County."

Reynolds is concerned the college may run out of time to find a replacement.

"Our prime concern should be selecting someone who has the welfare of the district and the mission of Belleville Area College at heart," Reynolds said. "The candidate should not be one who supports any individual board member, or group of board members."

Pontoon Beach proposing big annexation

Pontoon Beach is proceeding with a large annexation which could bring the village's corporate limits close to those of Collinsville.

The annexation would include a tract that runs parallel to State Aid 35, including its interchange with Interstate 255, Gray's Farms and an area near the Von Fossan soccer fields.

The annexation would not include the Holiday Mobile Home Park or Fournie Farms, according to Village President Glen Wilson.

About 115 acres at McDonough Lake would join the village as well as Nichols Airport on the south side of 35 at Illinois 111 and several farms east of the airport.

Also included in the annexation would be 255's interchanges with Illinois 162 and I-270 to the north.

The proposed annexation totals about 2,400 acres. It would not go east of Illinois 157 at any point, Wilson said.

Collinsville Mayor Gene Brombolich said he doubted whether Pontoon Beach could provide services to such a big area. He said he won't rule out eventually annexing the 35-255 area to Collinsville but has no plans to do so at this time. It is his city's policy not to solicit annexations.

Judge resigns due to illness

Circuit Judge William E. Johnson, 56, Glen Carbon, resigned June 4 to begin disability retirement. He was hospitalized in April 1985 for surgical removal of a blood clot in the brain.

He is now able to speak some words and is becoming more alert, but remains unable to perform judicial duties.

The Illinois Supreme Court will appoint a successor to serve until December 1988.

The Democratic and Republican parties in March 1988 will nominate judge candidates to compete in the November 1988 election for a two-year unexpired term.

Johnson, a Democrat and former Granite City attorney, was elected as a circuit judge in 1978 and was retained by voters in 1984 for another six-year term.

His pension will be 85 percent of his yearly $73,000 salary. The Illinois Compensation Review Board has proposed that circuit judges receive raises of 4.5 percent in July and 5 percent in July 1987.

Adlai at picnic in county today

Adlai Stevenson will bring his campaign for governor to Madison County today, speaking at 2 p.m. at the fifth annual picnic of DEMCO (Democratic Elected Madison County Officials) at Maryville Park, Illinois 159, Maryville.

Stevenson will be at the Alton Landing river festival today from 12:30 to 1:30 and will spend 2 to 3:30 at the Maryville picnic. He will be at the Roxana park from 4 to 5:15 p.m.

The DEMCO picnic will last from noon to 6 p.m. Also scheduled to be there are Michael Howlett (See ADLAI, Page 6A)

Redmond told to cancel tea

GRANITE CITY — School Board members during the June 3 executive session accused Superintendent Max Redmond of intending to spotlight himself.

Board member David Partney supplied the following information about what occurred in the executive session:

After ordering the press from the executive session for the first time in more than 10 years, board member Alan Crider told Redmond to cancel a tea District 9 employees had asked him to attend on June 19, said board member David Partney.

Crider told Redmond to call the employees who had contacted him and cancel the tea.

Crider said Redmond was conducting politics on his own behalf. Board member Monroe Worthen told the Press-Record/Journal the discussion was in executive session and declined comment.

Crider told the Press-Record/Journal he had nothing to say before hanging up on us.

Redmond told the board he had no part in organizing the tea. (See BOARD, Page 6A)

Over $3600 difference in bids for city's fuel

By Bill Bagby
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — A difference of more than $3,600 has been discovered between two bids submitted for provision of the city's fuel for fiscal 1987.

The bids, submitted by Ranney Rich of Rich Oil Co. and Ronald E. Branding of Mobil Oil, were presented in cents per gallon for regular and unleaded gasoline, diesel fuel and heating oil.

However, a member of City Comptroller Joe Miklovic's staff computed the bids into dollars by researching the total gallons of fuel the city purchased in the last fiscal year.

Based on last year's volume, the city purchases 125,000 gallons of petroleum products, Miklovic said.

Using this figure, Miklovic said the Mobil Oil bid would total $66,962 and the Rich Oil bid would total $70,642 — a difference of $3,680.

He said these figures are accurate assuming the same amount of fuel is purchased as last year.

The Granite City Engineering Department, in a letter to the street and alley committee and the City Council, recommended the Mobil Oil bid be accepted for regular and unleaded gasoline, and the Rich Oil bid be accepted for diesel fuel and heating oil.

But at last Tuesday's City Council meeting, 6th Ward Alderwoman Judy Whitaker moved to accept the bid for all the fuels from Rich Oil.

WHITAKER said she felt the aldermen should accept the Rich bid because his business was located in the city, at 1501 State St., as opposed to Branding, who gave an Edwardsville address.

"It's not much money to waste since we have wasted money on a lot of other things on this council," Whitaker said.

"We're accepting a bid that's not the low bid," asked 3rd Ward Alderman Brett Hawke. "My opinion as a taxpayer and an alderman is to take the lower bid."

City Attorney Mark Goldenberg said there are certain conditions under which the council could accept the higher bid, but he could not give the aldermen a definite opinion until he checked further into the bid.

THE COUNCIL then decided to defer action on the bids.

"I'm at a loss to figure out what's going on here," Branding said Thursday. "I'm just as local as Mr. Rich."

Branding, who is president of Rebecam Auto Parts at 1601 Pontoon Road, said he lived in Granite City for many years before moving to Edwardsville, and his business remains in Granite City.

He said a storage facility from where he would draw the fuel is located in Edwardsville.

Both Branding and Rich have supplied the city with fuel in the past.

Local poet wins national honor

By Bill Bagby

GRANITE CITY — Writing poetry is a way Laura Hill expresses herself.

She never thought it would win her a national award.

Hill, of 2119 Benton St., received a letter last month informing her that her poem, "Eternity," had won the Golden Poet Award for 1986 from World of Poetry, a poetry newsletter.

SHE WILL RECEIVE the honor Sunday, Aug. 31, at an awards banquet in Orlando. Actor Vincent Price and poet/singer Maya Angelou are slated to appear at the presentation.

"This was a shock and a surprise in itself," Hill said. "I had no idea I was going to get this."

"This is the highest award the World of Poetry can give," said John Campbell, editor and publisher.

He said 690,000 poems were entered in the contest, and 2,200 awards were given; Hill finished in the top 1 percent. Entries came from across the United States, Canada and 29 foreign countries.

Hill's poem also won an award of merit certificate last year from the publication and was published in the Press-Record/Journal last fall.

THE WINNING POEM was written when Hill, 32, was in the 10th grade.

She said she stayed home from school one day and watched an old western movie. A man in the movie gave a woman a locket which was inscribed with "Eternal life and eternal love."

The next day a teacher asked her to write a poem, she said. Hill based her poem on the inscription on the locket.

Since then she has written about 40 poems.

"IT COMES TO ME all at once," she said. "Energy runs through me like goose bumps and all I have to do is write the words down."

Her poems come from everyday experiences and are usually short and to the point, she said.

"I'm straight off the shoulder," Hill said. "I tell it short and sweet."

She uses poetry to express anger.

"CAN'T SCREAM and holler because I'd forget what I said," Hill said. "So I write it down."

Though her poetry was meant as a way of self-expression, Hill said winning the award has given her confidence that others may want to read her work.

Her goal is to publish a book containing her works, she said.

"Poetry is one man's way of expressing many people's feelings," she said, "but they feel it when they read it."

Court will review case against Granite City lawyers

A case against several Madison County attorneys, including four from Granite City, will be reviewed by the Illinois Supreme Court.

The court has decided to review professional "misconduct" allegations from the 1980 campaign against retention of two judges.

The high court last week, over objections of the lawyers, agreed to hear arguments by the administrator of the Attorney Registration and Disciplinary Commission (ARDC), Carl H. Rolewicz. Rolewicz first filed the complaint in April 1984.

The court's action also made public the previously confidential information that both the Hearing and Review Boards of the ARDC (panels composed of lawyers) had dismissed the complaint on the grounds it did not sufficiently allege any violation of the lawyers' Code of Professional Responsibility.

The administrator's complaint alleged that Morris B. Chapman of Granite City, Jon G. Carlson of Edwardsville, L. Thomas Lakin of East Alton, William Schooley Jr., Leon G. Scroggins and William Starnes Scatty of Granite City should be held professionally responsible for allegedly false statements disseminated by the "Committee for an Improved Judiciary."

The complaint alleges the six lawyers had either contributed financially or participated in the committee's successful campaign to defeat retention of Circuit Judges Victor Mosele of Alton and John DeLaurenti of Greenville in November 1980.

A second count of the complaint was directed only at Chapman and Carlson, who were formerly law partners. It contends they should be disciplined for hiring a private investigator to "tail" Fifth Appellate Court Justice John W. Karns of Belleville in his after-work activities from June 27 to July 20, 1978.

The Supreme Court last week also agreed to examine the private investigator's "surveillance" report on Karns forwarded by Chapman to the administrator of the Illinois Courts in 1978. However, the high court ordered that report remain "sealed."

Rolewicz's brief contends "the surveillance report demonstrates the unprofessional nature of such an investigation of a judge before whom attorneys have cases pending."

The brief filed for Chapman argues "every lawyer has the right to investigate and report judicial conduct on or off the bench."

The arguments for the lawyers filed with the Supreme Court urged it not to hear Rolewicz's arguments and instead accept the findings of the Hearing and Review Boards.

Scroggins argued, "These proceedings have been lengthy, expensive, pointless and non-productive for everyone involved."

The brief on behalf of Carlson, Lakin and Schooley argued "enough is enough" and "the time has come to call a halt to the financial expense and mental anguish which respondents (themselves) have suffered for the past half-dozen years."

Chapman, Carlson, Schooley and Lakin also filed lawsuits in federal court in Chicago in 1984 after the first complaint was brought by the ARDC administrator and inquiry board, seeking a permanent injunction barring the ARDC from proceeding any further.

They alleged violation of their constitutional rights of free speech, free association and due process and "harassment" by the ARDC administrator.

On Jan. 30, 1985, U.S. District Judge James Parsons in Chicago declined to issue the injunction.

The Illinois House of Representatives Committee Wednesday approved a $3.5 million plan to make Horseshoe Lake a state park, said Rep. Lloyd "Curly" Harris. Development of the proposed 7,773-acre park was unanimously endorsed last week by the Southwestern Illinois Conference of Mayors.

Public hearing June 10 on TIF

A PUBLIC HEARING on the Tax Increment Commission of Granite City will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, June 10, at Township Hall, 2060 Delmar Ave., said Director of Economic Development Alan Ortals. The hearing is on the development plan and tax increment financing (TIF) program for the downtown area, he said. Interested persons will have an opportunity to speak at the hearing.

Comment

Who is managing Granite City?

This city lacks a manager. Though familiar with problems in each city department, Mayor Von Dee Cruse is no expert on streets, sanitary sewers, storm sewers, the waste treatment plant, engineering, capital improvement planning, etc.

While working with departments to meet problems, the mayor's time to deal with other matters more appropriate to his position is reduced. He should be, for example, doing more to boost this community's economy.

But someone must deal with needs in the various departments. Those departments have charge of city property valued at more than $300 million. An expert, not a mayor, is needed for the job.

A public works director may be the answer.

A full-time director could deal with the city's appointed and elected department heads to solve problems such as occurred earlier this year when the council was divided about how to spend repair money. Most city departments would still be in charge of their own money, but no plan was available and Street Superintendent Mac Warfield was asked to divide the money among wards — an inefficient approach to spending. A director of public works could have prepared a street plan and made more effective use of taxpayers' money.

Another example involves the sewage treatment plant. During the regionalization process, an expert's hand to aid in planning and implementation would be of help.

These and other city departments could benefit from having an expert assist in more efficient day-to-day operations and long-range plans.

If there is a drawback to a public works director, it is adding another person to the payroll. The mayor wants the city efficiently run, like a business. If so, it is worthwhile to add to the payroll only if a better product, in this case-city service, results.

Another drawback is the potential for the job to be a patronage position in future administrations. We would oppose that.

There are too many people on the public payroll who are soaking up taxpayers' money because they know the right persons rather than because they had the right qualifications. If the city hires a public works director, the hired person should have the right experience rather than the right friends. Specifications for the job, approved by the council in ordinance form, are perhaps a way to insure the job never becomes one of patronage.

Because this city has never had a public works director, it is not possible to say the person hired for the job would or would not be of great benefit to the city. However, indications are the position would be worthwhile and further consideration is merited.

What they'd like you to believe

There was no bucket of tar or bag full of feathers, there was no splintery rail, no rope or torches were brought in, the District 9 School Board meeting, but this newspaper was publicly accused by board President Dewey Melton of stirring up public hysteria.

That doesn't seem to be an accurate portrayal of what's occurring, but Melton is entitled to his perceptions.

The questions asked by the crowd that overflowed the board room at the meeting Tuesday night were intelligent, cogent, but in no way "hysterical."

What seems hysterical, from our perspective, is the attempts to find fault with our reporting.

Melton felt he simply had to say before the board meeting that there were two "inaccuracies" in an article that appeared on the front page of Wednesday's paper. The article stated he was sitting when teachers gave a standing ovation in support of Superintendent Max Redmond, and that Melton called Redmond by telephone to seek his resignation.

Melton said he wasn't sitting during the ovation because he was getting tea. He said he talked with Redmond in person.

One thing that certainly proves beyond a shadow of a doubt that this newspaper is doing a terrible job, doesn't it?

Two staff members, present at the tea, said Melton got tea before the ovation, so somebody is mis-remembering. Maybe it's the two reporters. But the point is that Melton wasn't standing for Redmond and that point is clear.

We understood Melton called Redmond Sunday, but Melton said it was an in-person meeting on Friday. He's right, and we're wrong for various reasons not worth explaining since wrong is wrong. The significant point of the reporting was not when or how, however, but the fact that Melton asked for Redmond's resignation.

It seems hysterical to attack the paper on such grounds. God help us if there's a typo or grammatical error.

Another point worthy of note because it is true is that we reported, admittedly inaccurately, about a court case that indicated it would be illegal for a school board to create a position without a request from the superintendent.

What occurred is that we called the director of the Illinois Association of School Administrators, John Wargo, and then reported. He said Wednesday that "hiring" without the superintendent's recommendation may be illegal, not creating the "position," as we reported. One word hurt part of our story.

Wrong is wrong, and we admit that out of all the accusations being made by board members against this paper, this one seems relevant.

But misery loves company. It should be noted KMOX-TV Channel 4 and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch are also not doing a good job of reporting, according to some board members.

Points raised about our reporting seem minor; perhaps a desperate attempt to discredit not only this paper but all those who believe the school board should let Redmond do the job he was hired to do.

Our reporting is sound. A lot more sound, it seems, than the way the School Board conducts its business.

Superintendent has renewed educational progress

To the editor:

Kudos to Mr. Redmond for bringing unwavering dedication and integrity to our board of education. Assuredly, Granite City now has a superintendent who gauges progress in education not by reasons in political expediency, but by accomplishment in the classrooms.

One asks, though, why this very qualified man has faced so much undeserved opposition since accepting the position as superintendent?

Is the board of education bothered that Mr. Redmond is not a pawn who merely accepts its judgment in every decision?

Or is the board angered because this superintendent requires that board members act as educators and not politicians?

Maybe Mr. Melton and his fellow board members should cease their absurd calls for resignation and recognize that the superintendent's recommendations reflect informed leadership.

Max Redmond is capable of renewing the state of education in our schools. The State of Illinois knows this. Educators know this. Why won't the Granite City Board of Education grasp the obvious?

STEPHEN KUSMIERCZAK

W. Granite pupils, parents are great

As kindergarten teacher for so many of you West Granite area students during the last 17 years, I want to tell you how much I have enjoyed having you in my classes.

I will always appreciate the Valentine cards to "a special teacher" you have given me, the lovely Christmas gifts, the pictures you drew just for me that say, "I love you," and, most of all, the hugs that came often and unexpectedly.

I will miss seeing you each morning in the halls of Prather School. I will miss the "Hi, Mrs. Miller" that I heard all during the school day.

I will miss the precious moments when one of you stopped to tell me about your soccer game, or a new baby sister or brother, or a trip you were going to take.

The times you showed me some good work you had done — or shared something great you had just learned — I will miss.

It is hard to think about the days ahead without seeing Jason, Kevin, Tiffany, Anna Marie, Alice, Eric, Erica, Justin, Jimmy, Joe, Billy, Marcus, Cara, Amanda, Samantha, Brian, Bryan, Allan, Mary, Rebecca, Misty, Kristy, Chrissy, Annie, Jaclyn, Aaron, Timothy, Tony, Sam, Richard, Raymond, John, Wendy, Jeannie, Alicia, Charles and all at Prather School. I will miss each of you more than I can say.

I'm leaving Prather because I have been at Logan and Prather schools.

I know of no other group of parents who are more concerned or more dedicated to seeing that their children have the best kind of education possible.

Without your help my kindergarten classes would not have been able to cook our annual "Thanksgiving feast," to make and to share "stone soup," to take the trips we did to Grant's Farm and to the Pumpkin Patch.

Or to have marvelous Halloween, Christmas, Valentine's Day and Easter parties, to make our "award-winning" snowmen out of socks, and all the extra things you have done when I asked for help.

The first time your child goes to school is an awesome experience must learn more about teaching. In the past I have tried to go to school and to be your teacher, but it's a lot like riding a bike and trying to play soccer at the same time.

You may be able to do that for a short time, but you soon find that you can't play soccer well or stay on the bike for very long.

The only solution is to choose the one and to do the other later. Now I must go back to school and, eventually, help new teachers become the best teachers they can be.

Thank you for all the squeezes and pictures and smiles you have given me. I will always be grateful that I had the chance to be your teacher.

To the parents of the students, thank you for all the support you have given me during the years I — for you and for your children. School is a serious business.

Teachers, parents and students are involved in learning. But you, as parents, are your child's first and most important teachers.

You must encourage your child to respect his own abilities, to do the best he or she can in school.

It is your job to learn all that you can about how your child is being taught and to take with your child's teacher as often as possible.

When parents and teachers cooperate and share information about a child's educational needs, students learn better. This is vital to your child's education from preschool through high school.

I regret I cannot continue to teach kindergarten in Granite City Community Unit School District 9, but the time has come for me to go on, to do the kind of teaching that I must do and to share what I have been doing successfully in my classroom with other teachers.

Thank you for all the great things you have contributed to my kindergarten classes through the years, for your encouragement and for your concern for your children.

It has been an honor and privilege to have taught so many of your children.

The highest honor I will ever have is that of being called "Teacher" by the children in West Granite City. For this I am grateful.

THE CRITICISM FROM NON-SMOKERS WAS TOO MUCH TO BEAR. CARE FOR A STICK OF GUM?

It's always nice to get home

By Bill Milligan
Staff writer

My son was pushing a toy car in the window sill when I pulled into the driveway Wednesday night.

He heard me pull up and stopped what he was doing.

"Daddy's home, daddy's home," he called as he ran to the door.

It was the first time I'd seen him awake since Sunday. Work has been taking a lot of my time.

It's always nice to get home.

I'm fortunate to have a normal, healthy two year old. I'm fortunate to have a wife who understands my commitment to my job and the public.

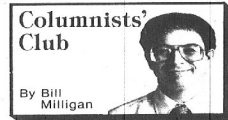

Sometimes it's hard to leave my family for work. Sometimes it's hard to stick around the office between my regular work day and a night meeting.

When I come home to a reception line like my son's, it makes everything seem worthwhile.

He always seems happy to see me.

We talk about what he did that day. He sits on my lap and I read books to him. He's getting to an age where he understands much of what I say.

Right now, he's being toilet trained. It seems to be rough on him.

Columnists' Club
By Bill Milligan

When I ask if he has to go to the bathroom, he always says no.

It's like he doesn't want to admit he's doing anything wrong.

He will come to me and say he's wet his pants, but he won't come and say he needs to go to the bathroom.

I always try and sit him down afterward and show him where to do things like that. It confuses him. I sometimes think he worried he is in trouble or something.

I ask him to let me change his pants and he resists. No, no, no he screams, but I can't let him run around with dirty pants. I change him sometimes against his protests.

His accidents don't make me angry, but when he resists things I try and talk with him.

I'm not angry with him and I try and tell him that. I tell him it must be done and the sooner it's over, the better we are for it.

I've read books on toilet training. The thing that has stuck with me is that a child shouldn't be forced to begin the training. A child shouldn't be punished for accidents.

When I get involved in a specific situation, I never really think about what I've read in the book. It is my love and concern that I want to communicate.

Wednesday night I got my first "I love you, daddy." It came right after a confrontation between us over changing his pants.

I was telling him he had nothing to cry about. I was holding him in my arms and telling him I loved him when, unexpectedly, he put his little arms around my neck and kissed me.

"I love you, daddy," he said.

I will never forget that moment. He is a normal little boy, blond haired, blue eyed, healthy, I hope happy. He's like millions of other little boys across the country.

I never imagined how proud I could be of him, how much that one act could mean to me.

Now, I know he loves me. I never doubted it.

But still, I leave for work every morning except Sunday without seeing him.

An appeal to school board to reconsider

Someone once said government is too big and important to be left to the politicians.

Another said a silent majority and government by the people is incompatible.

When the people talk, the media listen. Not only this newspaper, but the St. Louis media are in Granite City to cover the controversial situation between the School Board and the district's well-liked superintendent.

The natural outgrowth of the public's interest in the board has been this newspaper's coverage.

Some understandably don't like it.

They defend errors like a besieged fortress, digging in their heels and trying to make towers of trifles in attempts to discredit us.

Nobody who cares about the School District likes our coverage; we least of all. In the last election we endorsed several of the present board members and are disappointed at the report card they've turned in. But, just as I as an educator (part time) will flunk students who deserve to be flunked no matter how much I might personally like them, I must comment on School Board activities no matter how I feel about the personnel.

That's the trust the public has put in the press and we return nothing less.

Some board members want to dissuade us from our work by removing us from executive sessions, and others in closed-session suggested we should assign another reporter. Get serious.

By Jack C. Ventimiglia

When kicked out of the board meeting, we found the people in the hallways are so used to closed sessions that they take bets on how many hours the meetings will last.

At midnight, 1 a.m., 2 a.m.? Concerning the idea of a new reporter for the meetings, we'll do like the coach said: Go with the pitcher who brings ya.

We've made many friends through our reporting on the School Board. We appreciate the many fine comments.

But this newspaper and, we think, those who oppose the board's actions would drop the complaints if only the board would reverse its thinking on the issues of hirings, the Open Meetings Act and its attitude toward the superintendent.

There's no sense in defending indefensible positions.

So, before the battle lines that have been drawn are irreversibly crossed as expected Thursday night, we urge the board members to finish their business quickly at the board office and then go to the public forum at the township hall where they can once more find where they have public support by announcing a reversal in their direction.

It would be that easy.

Main St., Marion.

"These workshops are being held to inform candidates, political committees and interested citizens as to filing obligations under the Illinois Campaign Financing Act," Bowles said. "It is important in this election year that everyone running for office knows when to file certain campaign contribution reports and what information should be included. We want to help everyone so that the law is followed in every respect."

The workshops will be administered with the assistance of the Illinois State Board of Elections.

The main topics that will be discussed are procedures for completing the 1986 annual report and procedures for finalizing campaign activities. The public is invited to attend.

Cleanup begins June 11

GRANITE CITY — The annual "city cleanup" will begin Wednesday, June 11, said City Inspector Erv DeRousse.

The Granite City Sanitation Department, in cooperation with Landlax Waste Systems Inc., will collect all bulky discarded items placed near regular trash containers, DeRousse said.

"This will include items such as hot water heaters, tires, appliances, etc.," he said. Limbs or brush not bundled and over six feet in length will not be included in the pickup.

"This will help beautify our city," DeRousse said, "and (the people's) cooperation is necessary to make this a success as in prior years."

The cleanup program will end Wednesday, July 30, he said.

DeRousse emphasized that all discarded items should be put out for collection on Wednesdays. Questions or suggestions about the cleanup program can be directed to the city sanitation department at 452-6220.

Venice town meeting on youth set Monday

By Valerie Evenden
Staff writer

Measures to better supervise and control youths in the community will be the subject of a town meeting called by two Venice ministers for 7 p.m. Monday, June 9.

All Venice and Madison residents who are concerned about the revival of street gangs in the area are being urged to attend the meeting at the Venice Recreation Center, 323 Broadway.

The Rev. John Q. Owens, pastor of Bethel AME Church, 1035 Market St., and the Rev. John Henry Williams, pastor of New Salem Baptist Church, 1349 Klein St., are coordinating arrangements for the meeting.

The two ministers also will serve as moderators in the discussions.

"This is late notice (about the meeting), but we feel something must be done as soon as possible," Rev. Williams said Friday.

Civic and church leaders and police officials were being contacted Friday asking them to attend, Rev. Williams said.

"We believe the police departments need the support of the entire community to handle these problems with our youth," the minister said.

Specific instances of trouble in the communities were not cited by Rev. Williams, but some incidents have come to the attention of the ministers, he said.

"These problems need curtailing now before the summer really begins," the pastor stressed.

"I've already talked about the problem in my church and we think it is time for the whole community to become involved," Rev. Williams said.

Dr. Thomas A. Francis

of American Medical Colleges and deputy vice chancellor for medical affairs at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis.

The doctor of medicine degree was conferred by SIUC President Albert Somit, Ph.D. Diplomas were presented by Richard H. Moy, M.D., dean and provost of the School of Medicine.

New Madison school cafeteria director chosen

By Donna Kimbro
Staff writer

MADISON — A new cafeteria director and delegates to an Illinois Association of School Boards meeting were named at a Madison Board of Education meeting Thursday night.

President Billie Bosworth said reservations must be made by July 1 for Edward Dohnal, who will attend an annual IASB assembly on Nov. 22 as delegate, and Edmund Warchol, chosen as alternate.

Mary Beth Sipes, a clerk in the board office for seven years, was appointed cafeteria director to replace Caroline Sandor, who is retiring June 13. Sipes also has served as assistant to the cafeteria director.

In other business, the board awarded a contract for gasoline at Madison High School to Piasa Oil Co., which submitted the lowest bid to specifications.

Other bids opened were for bread, snack cake items, milk, potato chip snacks and linen. They were referred to the cafeteria director for tabulation and a recommendation to be presented at the next meeting.

Richard Spillers, assistant superintendent, announced 16 teachers have been hired for the summer school program at Harris, Blair and Louis Baer elementary schools, the Middle School and Madison High School.

He was given approval by the board to make application for a federal Chapter 1 grant for 1987.

Permission was given for the Middle School band to spend a day at Six Flags on Tuesday, June 24. All money for tickets and bus fare has been earned by the students, William Ledbetter, band director, said.

Mayor confident on fund outlook

By Donna Kimbro
Staff writer

In response to a projected deficit of $340,000 in the City of Madison, cited by the finance committee at a council meeting June 3, Mayor John Belcoff, a recent surgery patient, said last week, "I realize we are not without problems."

"But when I get back with the finance committee and the various department heads, I feel the problems we've had in the last 12 months can and will be resolved."

"I feel that with my dedicated service to the community, that includes 19 years on the Board of Education and 18 years as city clerk for the City of Madison — I've served with integrity and dignity."

"I will address these (economic) problems at the next council meeting."

Alderman Don Garrett is also to provide petitions, at the next council meeting, to be circulated for Madison residents to sign — requesting that federal revenue sharing funds and other grant monies not be discontinued. All of the petitions will be forwarded to legislators representing this area, Garrett said.

Alderman James Hillmer, chairman of the finance committee, said a meeting is tentatively scheduled for this week between the mayor, city department heads and committee members.

The main topic will relate to the budget and actual spending during the new fiscal year in each department, the chairman said.

Board finds fault with paper's report

A District 9 attorney issued a statement at the June 3 meeting to clear up "inaccurate reporting" in the June 1 issue of the Press-Record/Journal.

An opinion read by William Schooley Jr. stated that the newspaper missed a court ruling in a case involving District 189 in East St. Louis filed Jan. 10, 1978, before the 10th Judicial Circuit Court, St. Clair County.

Information published by the Press-Record/Journal was obtained in a conversation with John Wargo, director of the Illinois Association of School Administrators. At no time did Wargo represent himself as a lawyer.

The paragraph in question stated:

"In that case, the courts ruled the position was illegal because it had not been requested by the superintendent."

Preceding that paragraph was one which stated:

"Wargo pointed to a case in East St. Louis just a few years ago which involved District 189's decision to hire an assistant superintendent over the objections of Superintendent Leroy Dicks."

The following paragraph should have stated:

"In that case, the courts ruled the hiring was illegal because it had not been recommended by the superintendent."

The East St. Louis board's decision to hire an assistant superintendent was not recommended by the superintendent to hire for the job, rather than to create the job, was illegal.

The court ruling also stated, in item 12, "That for all positions below and responsible to the Superintendent it is necessary by virtue of Chapter 122, Section 10-21.4, Ill. Rev. Stats. 1975, that there be a recommendation of the Superintendent to the Board."

This means the superintendent is required to make recommendations on hiring to the board. In Wargo's opinion, the law requires the superintendent to make recommendations because administrators are in the best position to make personnel recommendations.

The court ruled that positions filled by the Dec. 19, 1977, resolution by District 189 would be declared vacant and that the superintendent should secure applicants and make recommendations to the board.

"The positions were vacated and had to await my recommendation," said District 189 Superintendent Leroy Dicks.

Barge compromise reached

Rep. Jim McPike, D-Alton, will not seek passage of his bill to reimpose state regulation of barge fleet, in exchange for an agreement by barge operators to work with area organizations.

McPike said he has reached an agreement with the Illinois River Carriers Association calling for a committee of barge line managers to meet with community leaders and tourism officials in the Alton to Grafton area.

"In the past, people didn't know who to talk to. The barge companies have agreed now to work to develop tourism and economic growth in the area," McPike said.

He cited a letter he received from Russell McHaffey, president of the River Carriers Association, saying, "In the future we would hope to work closely with local growth associations and other interested parties to promote an active and successful tourism industry."

McPike said the barge operators group also agreed to review complaints from the area about barge fleet operations and attempt to reach solutions.

McPike said Illinois Department of Transportation District Engineer Dale Klorh had agreed to McPike's request to install signs on the Great River Road between Clinton Terrace and Grafton across the river in order to tie up to the roadway embankment.

In the past, barge operators have not requested permission before mooring along the River Road, McPike said.

He also received information from the Army Corps of Engineers which designated the Illinois bank of the Mississippi River from Alton to north of Chautauque as "unfetterable."

Illinois House majority leader, McPike said, he believes he could have pushed the bill to reimpose state regulation of barge fleet through the bill House "if I made it personal."

"I don't know if it could have gotten out of the Senate," he said.

McPike said the bill was proposed to "work together" of the barge fleet industry.

"I wasn't interested in creating problems all over the state for barge operators. I just wanted them to recognize the importance of tourism and the scenic nature of the river in our area."

He said local barge line operators had been among very upset.

The bill was voted out of the House Transportation Committee last month on an 11-6 vote. There was strong opposition to the legislation by both the barge industry and agricultural groups.

Legislation was passed by the General Assembly in 1971 and signed by Gov. James Thompson which stripped the state of its prior authority to regulate barge fleet, leaving the issue solely to Corps of Engineers jurisdiction.

Area groups such as the River Road Alliance have since waged an unsuccessful battle against Corps approval of a barge fleet area near Grafton operated by National Marine Service.

Previously, barge fleet, at Clinton Terrace, was proposed but the plan never was authorized by government officials.

Mont. Sterling, Canton get prisons

New prisons will be located in Canton and Mt. Sterling, two of the six areas considered for the 750-bed facilities.

"These new prisons, and a third to be announced later, will enable the Department of Corrections to reduce the populations at the four oldest, most crowded and most violent prisons — Stateville, Joliet, Pontiac and Menard — by making them safer for the inmates and inmates housed there," Gov. James Thompson said.

"This was a difficult decision. The areas were similar in many ways. But these two showed exceptional support for a prison, they have high unemployment levels, and they historically have had few state facilities."

"These prisons will be located in areas that will allow them to draw employees from many communities, including Peoria, Macomb, Quincy, Pekin and Bushfield."

Corrections Director Michael P. Lane and James K. Williams, the governor's aide for public safety, attended public hearings at the six counties April 21-26.

The six, including East St. Louis, were among 22 in which hearings were held in 1982. Dixon, Danville, Lincoln, Jacksonville and Galesburg also have been selected from among the 22 as sites for prisons.

These two prisons, plus a third prison to be sited later, will be built according to the schedule set by the state's fiscal year.

Criteria used in evaluating the six "finalists" included highway access, level of state payroll, availability of higher education, availability of land, water and sewerage, hospital access, electricity usage and the degree of community support for the project.

A Department of Corrections

Each of the two new prisons will be medium-security facilities and each will employ 400 people when completed. Payroll at each will total about $10 million from an annual budget of $15 million.

As many as 250 tradesmen are expected to be employed during the two-year construction period. Thompson said the Mt. Sterling prison will be the first to be built.

Planning, design and construction dollars for the Mt. Sterling prison, totaling $41.1 million, will be sought for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1986, including planning and design money totaling $3.5 million will be sought for the Canton prison during fiscal 1987.

The Department of Corrections will select the specific sites from among those submitted by Canton and Mt. Sterling in the coming weeks.

These two prisons, plus a third prison to be sited later, will be built according to the schedule set by the state's fiscal year.

Criteria used in evaluating the six "finalists" included highway access, level of state payroll, availability of higher education, availability of land, water and sewerage, hospital access, electricity usage and the degree of community support for the project.

A tenth facility, in Galesburg, will open this fall and the District Correctional Center will continue to expand to house another 400 inmates during the next several years.

Adults sentenced to prison for the three most violent crime classes since 1982 increased by 6,470 more than the entire prison population in 1972. Almost 75 percent of these violence-prone inmates are confined at the four oldest, most crowded prisons.

Since 1978, the state has added nine prisons to the adult system and has expanded efforts to accommodate the influx of people sent to prison.

A tenth facility, in Galesburg, will open this fall and the District Correctional Center will continue to expand to house another 400 inmates during the next several years.

he had been contacted by employees and asked what week he might leave for coming, and that two days later they had asked him to attend an event.

When told to cancel the event, Redmond was reported to have declined.

Board member Monroe Worthen complained flyers advertising the event had been printed in the Coolidge Junior High print shop.

Partney said Worthen knew the union newspaper had been printed at the shop for years and that Worthen had never complained about it.

President Dewey Melton said he felt Redmond should resign because Redmond was not good for the school district.

Redmond asked Melton why he wasn't informed his services would not be needed in January.

Melton said he was doing the same job now as he did in January.

Melton said he waited because he thought Redmond could be counseled.

Also discussed in executive session was the board's past practice of allowing the press to attend executive session.

Terry is treasurer candidate

David L. Terry of Bethalto, public relations director at Blackburn College, beat the May 19 filing deadline to run as the Republican candidate for Madison County treasurer.

Terry, 40, will oppose Democrat Michael S. "Mick" Henkhaus, incumbent treasurer.

Terry said he decided to run for the treasurer's job because he didn't want the seat to go uncontested.

If elected as treasurer, Terry said he would run the office and was open to the public and the press.

"Government should be open to the people. I'm going to be open to suggestions and better serve the people of Madison County," he said.

Terry, a Vietnam veteran, said he felt he was qualified for the position of treasurer from his experience in budget responsibilities during his positions in public relations.

The Madison County Board had two more filings for candidates, in District 4 and District 14, for the November election.

Brenda A. Smith of Bethalto will run as the Democratic candidate for District 4 (Morro). She will oppose Republican incumbent Homer Hays.

The newly filed Republican candidate for District 14 (Wood River Township) is Larry G. Trent of Wood River. Trent, 38, assistant zone commander for the Illinois Division of Criminal Investigation, will oppose Democrat Rudolph Papa.

Toffant barred from suspension

Madison County Sheriff Emil Toffant has been barred from suspending a deputy sheriff pending an appeal of the suspension.

Associate Judge Paul Riley on June 2 issued a temporary restraining order delaying the three-day suspension until Deputy John Onesky's appeal can be considered by the Sheriff's Merit Commission.

Toffant ordered the suspension in the wake of a "heated dispute" between Onesky and a superior officer, Lt. John McLaughlin.

"In view of the information given by witnesses to the incident, I can only conclude that your suspension is a grossly unfair and inconsistent with that expected of a deputy sheriff toward a superior officer," Toffant said in a letter to Onesky.

But Onesky appealed the suspension, alleging the investigation of the incident did not comply with department policies or Illinois law, that Onesky's actions had been "unjustifiably provoked" and that the severity of the punishment was disproportionate to the offense and fails to take into account Onesky's prior good record.

The appeal also alleges the punishment is disproportionate to the offense and fails to take into account Onesky's prior good record.

Riley, in his order, said the delay would protect the county from legal liability should the suspension later be overturned by the Merit Board.

Onesky, a Collinsville resident, referred questions to his attorney, John Rekowski.

"I know John Onesky hopes the matter can be resolved peacefully and amicably," Rekowski said.

"He has always been happy working in the sheriff's department, had a good relationship with the sheriff and hopes to continue with the relationship."

Toffant and Maj. Robert Hertz, the county's second chief of operations, declined to comment on the matter.

New hearing aids are better

Advanced electronics in today's hearing aids mean that more people than ever can hear better.

Sounds like good news. But, unfortunately, many of those who might benefit don't seem to have heard. Nearly three-fourths of the 17 million Americans with a hearing loss do not use a hearing aid.

Audiologist Jay Davis says it's mostly myths and misconceptions that keep many potential hearing aid users from improved hearing.

Davis is director of audiology in the department of otolaryngology at St. Louis University Medical Center.

One persistent myth Davis has encountered holds that sensory neural hearing impairments, or nerve deafness, cannot be helped.

Though at one time this was true, today's hearing aids are able to improve even nerve deafness.

Technologies that have existed for decades like integrated circuitry and computer design, have only recently been put to use in hearing aids. The result is a more effective, more comfortable and less noticeable hearing aid.

Run for Liberty will help statue

Ted Danson, star of NBC's "Cheers," is encouraging Americans to register for the third annual Run for Liberty on June 28.

Danson said Strph's Run for Liberty III is an 8-kilometer race held in 105 cities across the U.S. to benefit the restoration of the Statue of Liberty.

"This year we've added a 2k run so that all can participate by running, jogging or walking," Danson said.

"This is an opportunity for everyone regardless of athletic ability will have a chance to show patriotic spirit."

Danson is the honorary chairman of this year's run.

All runners will receive a Run for Liberty III T-shirt and a commemorative booklet containing individual race and time results.

The entry fee is $8 through June 22 and $10 on June 23-28.

Indian craft classes again at Cahokia Mounds Site

Cahokia Mounds Historic Site, 7850 Collinsville Road, assisted by Pepsi-Cola Alton Bottling, has established a summer Native American craft class program for children and adults.

The program offers an opportunity for the public to learn about the Indians' culture by using the same methods, tools and native materials which prehistoric and historic Indians used.

June begins with a class in flintknapping for children. Larry Kinsella, whose stone tools are on display at the Illinois State Museum, will teach the class.

The flintknapping class for children age 9 to 12 is scheduled for Saturday, June 14, and for children ages 13 to 16 on June 21. Class time on these Saturdays is 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuition is $5.

Native American craft classes for adults are scheduled for June 28 and 29 and will feature cane basketweaving and blowgun making.

Minnie and Wood Bell, sister and brother Choctaw Indians from the Chucalissa Museum, Memphis, Tenn., will instruct the two classes.

Wood and Minnie learned these crafts from their parents when they were young children on the reservation in Philadelphia, Miss.

Minnie, assisted by Wood, will demonstrate how to quarter, peel and dye the cane. Students will learn all phases of basket construction by making a basket. Tuition for the two-day cane basket class is $20. Class time is 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Wood Bell will teach the blowgun class on Saturday, June 28, from 12 noon to 4 p.m. Each student will learn to make a blowgun from a cane shaft and also will make a dart.

He will instruct the students on the proper use of the blowgun. The blowgun class tuition is $5.

Students for the cane basket and blowgun classes need to bring a pocketknife and gloves.

Other summer adult classes are Indian cooking, July 26 and 27, and bowmaking, Aug. 23. Summer children's classes are: beads, July 12 and 19, and pottery, Aug. 2 and 16.

For more information about the Native American craft program, which runs from March through November each year, Quadtians may call the Cahokia Mounds Museum at 344-5268.

Police news

Two arrests this year for 'boating under the influence'

Two arrests have been made so far this year under the stiffer BUI (boating under the influence) law passed by the Illinois legislature last year.

The law is aimed at cutting down on the increasing number of injuries and fatalities from boating accidents occurring on Illinois waterways.

The most recent boating accident occurred Memorial Day on the Illinois River near Hardin. John Fuller of Hardin drowned in the accident.

The Illinois Department of Conservation (IDOC) charged the operator of the John boat, Mike Bick, 25, of Hardin with operation of a boat while under the influence and reckless boat operation.

Under the new law, Bick could be tried on a Class 3 felony for operating a boat under the influence and causing an accident that resulted in the death of another person. The penalty is a sentence of up to five years in prison and/or a $10,000 fine.

First offense of BUI carry an automatic one-year suspension of the right to operate a boat. Operators have 28 days to request a hearing on the suspension.

A second offense is a Class 4 felony and carries a penalty of up to three years in prison and fines up to $10,000.

All charges of BUI carry an automatic one-year suspension of the right to operate a boat. Operators have 28 days to request a hearing on the suspension.

Capt. David Cunningham of the law enforcement branch of IDOC was pleased with the stricter law, describing the previous law as "weak."

"It was almost an impossible law to prosecute," he said. "We had a general law that said it was unlawful to operate a watercraft under the influence of drugs or alcohol, but it didn't set a level of intoxication. The penalty for the general law was a fine of between $25 and $100."

Approximately 1,200 people die in boating accidents each year across the nation. A report by the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta estimated that 69 percent of all water-related deaths involved the use of alcohol.

Cunningham attributed the high percentage of drinking-related boating accidents to the association of drinking and boating as recreation activities.

"Alcohol slows down the responses. People have to be sharp on a boat and maybe even more so than in a car. Boats don't have brakes and there are no lanes, traffic lights or stop signs on the water," Cunningham said.

Now that the IDOC can prosecute drunk boaters, the problem now is to catch them, which in itself is a difficult job, he said.

Officers using four patrol boats cover large areas of water on the Illinois and Mississippi rivers and other major waterways, in addition to performing their conservation work.

They are out patrolling, mainly on weekends, from Memorial Day to Labor Day. Smaller boats are assigned to the waterways during the week.

Dukes up in today's sports

It doesn't seem to matter what sport it is — hockey, baseball or even basketball — there is a good chance, if you watch long enough, you'll see a fight.

It's the same principal as watching the Indy 500. Sooner or later, somebody is going to smack that wall.

The latest incident occurred in Game 5 of the NBA championship series Thursday between the Boston Celtics and the Houston Rockets.

It involved 7-4 Ralph Sampson of Houston and not-so-tall Jerry Sichting of Boston. Sampson got upset and punched the Boston guard (who is 15 inches shorter than Sampson) and was subsequently ejected from the game.

The Rockets, facing a summer of golf because they trailed in the series 3-1, seemed inspired by Sampson's antics and won the game 111-96.

The incident is just one of several involving professional athletes the past few weeks.

Houston, who might think about changing its nickname to the Houston Rocky(s), was also involved in some fistbumps in a Western Conference final duel against the L.A. Lakers.

In Game 5, the Rockets' Akeem Olatunji squared off with Mitch Kupchak. Sampson was also involved in another fracas, but Akeem saved him from an early shower.

This is great for the ratings, but bad for basketball. For a long time, the book on pro hockey was too many fights. Now its basketball. I was expecting to see the Detroit Red Wings show up.

The Red Wings, hockey's version of "Wrestlemania" this past season, made a habit of beating up — but, not beating — their opponents. They led the league in fights and penalties. It was only apt that they played their home games in the Joe Louis Arena.

The hallowed sport of baseball has even been infected.

A couple of weeks ago, Tom Niedenfuer of Los Angeles hit the Mets' Ray Knight, who responded by charging to the mound. "Big Tom" countered by body-slammung Knight to the ground. The benches cleared and the highlight films were born.

Hockey has always provided several fights. This year's Stanley Cup finals between Montreal and Calgary was no exception. After Game 4, a brawl broke out.

For 10 minutes, punching, gouging and biting was the main attraction at the Forum.

That's right, biting. Calgary's Jim Peplinski was bitten on his right index finger by Claude Lemieux. Great sport. Lord Stanley would have been shocked.

NHL president John Ziegler made a half-hearted attempt to mask the problem. He levied $42,000 in fines. However, those fines are likely to be paid for by the teams instead of the players. Needless to say, they will serve little as a deterrent.

There's too much fighting in professional sports. Everyone concerned would be better served if the athletes would stick to playing the game.

Warriors place 9 on SWC team

By Gregg Ochoa

Executive Sports Editor
Granite City placed eight players — four first teamers — on the 1986 All-Southwestern Conference baseball team.

Senior catcher Matt Roe was joined by juniors Jamie Hogan (second base), Todd Hinterser (shortstop) and Tim Hogan (outfield) on the first team.

Granite City and Belleville East each placed four players on the first team. East St. Louis had three. Overall, East placed 10 players on the team; Granite City (9); East St. Louis (8); Collinsville (6) and Belleville West and Alton (3 each).

For the first time in two years, coaches met in person to select the all-conference team. In the past, ballots were mailed to a single coordinator who would then compile the votes and release the final tabulation.

"I think the team was well represented," said Granite City coach Bob Stegemeier. "I wouldn't mind coaching it." Belleville East pitcher/designated hitter Sam Lance was voted by coaches as the Southwestern Conference's Player of the Year, the first time such an honor was given.

Lance was 10-1 during the regular season. He was one of three first-team players to be elected unanimous. The others were Roe and Kevin Hagerty of Belleville East.

SLIR hosts 16th Gateway Nationals

Pitchers have to pitch rather than just throw

A sports reporter for the Washington Post is putting forth a heady claim for being a Boswell of Baseball in a series of articles he's currently doing.

The funny thing is, his name is Thomas Boswell and he is trying to prove that the players, and particularly the pitchers, are much better than those who played at the time of Stan Musial and Ted Williams, both pretty fair country hitters in their time.

Musial, like Williams, hit from the port side — and for power, too. There is no telling how many more hitting marks Williams, the Splendid Splinter, may have set if his major league career hadn't been interrupted by World War II and the Korean war. Over 19 seasons, the great Boston Red Sox star racked up a .344 batting average. Musial, over 22 campaigns, posted a truly amazing .331 hitting mark. And one tends to forget he even posted a sensational .426 average in his first trip up to the Cardinals at the tail end of the 1941 season, when the Redbirds just missed catching the Dodgers in the National League pennant race. I cite Musial's and Williams' feats with the bat in an attempt to answer Boswell's main point of his series of articles entitled "Modern

Sports of All Sorts

By Al Barnes

Players Must Measure Up," in which he tries to prove that only monster athletes, say, not less than 6-5, can hope to make it as pitchers in modern day baseball, like the Yankees' 6-7 Dennis Rasmussen and the Red Sox' 6-5 Roger Clemens, the game's new single-game strikeout king.

To my recollection, it all started about 20 years ago when the radar gun made it possible to record the speed at which a young man could deliver a pitch past a hitter.

Every major league scout soon bought himself a speed gun and just as soon stopped looking for a young man who had learned something about the art of pitching a baseball. Like a little bitty guy like the St. Louis Cardinals' southpaw, Harry "The Cat" Brecheen, who won three games in the 1946 World Series.

Brecheen faced Williams a total of 10 times and allowed only two hits. And, in doing so, he was the main reason the Cardinals upset the experts — and the bookmakers who had established Boston as 2-to-1 favorites. The Cardinals won in seven games. For the record, George (Red) Mungler won the other game for the Cardinals.

Brecheen, who was not much taller than 5-7 and weighed 175 pounds, knew how to pitch, and his fastest pitch would have had trouble breaking a fragile plate glass window.

The Cat's skill was the main reason Williams, one of the greatest hitters of all time, hit a paltry .200 in the Series. In posting his 3-0 mark in that series, Brecheen recorded an amazing earned run average of 0.45. In those three games, he hurled 20 innings, allowed 14 hits, gave up just one earned run, fanned 11 and walked just five batters.

Some pitcher, huh? I still can see him in my mind's eye as he won Game 1 on a four-hitter; Game 6, 4-1, in St. Louis on another miserly seven-hitter; and, taking over for Murray Dickson in Game 7, 4-3, on Enos Slaughter's fantastic felony, going from first to home on Harry Walker's double in the top of the ninth to break a 3-3 tie.

I hope that scouts in the future will stop looking for the kids down in high school and college and find the ones who are learning to pitch.

A REMINDER FROM THE LAW TODAY

In the New York City, the district attorney is considering submitting to a grand jury charges that doctors and nurses at a certain hospital were criminally negligent in connection with the death of an 18-year-old woman. The woman, who was admitted to the hospital for an earache, died after she was given incompatible drugs, put in a type of straitjacket, and tied to a bed. Outside medical authorities have said that the action of the doctors and nurses constituted a gross deviation from proper standards of care.

The lesson in all this is not that all doctors and nurses are this bad. Rather, it is that the health care system — even with the supposed safeguards of malpractice suits and doctor's disciplinary commissions — does not always work. The answer to making it work better certainly does not lie in limiting the rights that injured patients have now, as many legislatures have done under pressure the medical lobby. Moreover, the medical profession may well find — as the above example shows — that substandard conduct will not be tolerated by the public even in the presence of legislation limiting the constitutional right to a jury trial.

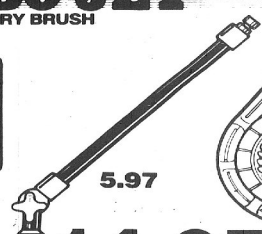

We will be discussing this and other matters on Tuesday night's program.
